If you return a product to us under warranty, once the goods have been received, it will be sent to the manufacturer for inspection and investigation. They will conclude whether the pump has a genuine fault. If so, a replacement pump will be sent out. If the report concludes there is not a fault with the pump you will be notified accordingly. This process can take up to 2 weeks once the pump has been received by us.

PLEASE NOTE.... Pump manufactures reserve the right not to inspect any products under warranty that are not clean. If a pump is sent back for a warranty inspection, the pump should be returned to us in a clean state, without any liquid or contaminants on the pump
